Detailed Action

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-7, drawn to a method for assigning a cellular function to a component of a biochemical system determined by finding differences in component shape spaces of reference and perturbed states focusing at the component, classified in class 702, subclass 19.
- II. Claims 8-21, drawn to a method for assigning a cellular function to a component of a biochemical system determined by finding differences in network shape spaces of reference and perturbed states focusing at the network level, classified in class 706, subclass 20.
- III. Claims 22-35, drawn to a method for assigning cellular function to a component of a biochemical system determined by comparing an initially selected data element to a reference, classified in class 706, subclass 48.
- IV. Claims 36-41, drawn to a method for identifying a component of a biochemical network based on an altered multidimensional coordinate point in response to perturbation, classified in class 702, subclass 153.
- V. Claims 42-46, drawn to a method for identifying functionally interactive components of a biochemical network based on integration of two sets of linked components having one of two common data elements, classified in class 702, subclass 155.
- VI. Claims 47-49, drawn to a method for identifying a compound that restores a biochemical system to a reference state, classified in class 702, subclass 27.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Although there are no provisions under the section for “Relationship of Inventions” in M.P.E.P. § 806.05 for inventive groups that are directed to different processes, restriction is deemed to be proper because these methods appear to constitute patentably distinct inventions for the following reasons: Groups I-VI are directed to processes and methods that recite structurally and functionally distinct elements, are not required one for the other, and/or achieve different goals. Group I determines differences in shape space focusing at the component level. Group II determines differences in shape spaces focusing at the network level. Group III is directed to initially selecting a data element present in the perturbed state which is then compared to a reference. Groups IV-VI are directed to methods featuring different method steps and achieving different goals which differ from all other Groups. These distinct processes and methods are often separately characterized and published in literature and would add undue search burden if they were all examined together. Thus, they are considered distinct invention types for restriction purposes.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
